

Hans Rudolf Weber with one of his colourful sculptures.

The sculptor, Hans Rudolf Weber, and the President of the Pontiró Neighbours' Association, Joan Alzina, just before revealing one of the magnificent pieces.

By Amanda Jeffrey

Don't miss out on any exclusive events on the most beautiful island in the world!

● On Saturday afternoon coinciding with the 50th anniversary of the creation of the rural nucleus of Pontiró, the Swiss artist Hans Rudolf Weber gave the community the gift of two identical sculptures, for each entrance of the residential resort.

There's confusion with the name because people know it as Puntiró with a "u" but the real toponym is Pontiró and that is how it is described on the old maps.

The neighbourhood community wanted to thank him for the gift, a very international community and a place that the artist defines very well as "Freedom, Harmony and Happiness".

The Pontiró neighbours with Hans Rudolf Weber around one of the attractive sculptures.

Arlet Wiplinger (spokeswoman), Joan Alzina (President of the Pontiró Neighbours' Association) and Antonio Gari (administrator).

Stick-no-bills-posters celebrated reaching a historic milestone in the development of their licensed travel poster art enterprise in Palma. British Vice Consul Lucy Gorman (left) and Tracy Wooton (daughter of Frank Wootton O.B.E. the prolific British aviation artist who painted this artwork in 1950) with owner Meghan Williams at the event in which the poster was unveiled. Tracy Wooton was gifted Number 1 of the museum grade 61 x 91cm limited edition series of the poster while number 2 is reserved for her brother Leigh and number 3 will be donated to British Airways.

Barbara Bergman (owner of Rialto Living) and the Danish artist, Christian Bundegaard.

The chef Miguel Navarro with his team: Juan, Michelle, Agustín, Nahuel, Lorenzo, Giulio and Iván.

● St. Regis Mardavall Mallorca Resort celebrates its 20th Anniversary with the redesign of the mythical St. Regis Bar and its Michelin star restaurant, "Es Fum", led by chef Miguel Navarro.

Olis de Soller (Oils from Soller) exhibition at the Rialto Living Gallery

● The opening was on Thursday May 19 at 5pm. The Danish painter, Christian Bundegaard, divides his time between his studios on the islands of Mallorca, in Soller, and Bornholm in the Baltic Sea. He defines himself as an Island Commuter and states that olive oil is indispensable, much like art.